DAILY GAZETTE.

THE LONDON TIMES' CORRESPONDENT AT THE BATTLE OF BULL'S RUN .-- Capt. Dolliver, of this city, who was near the contending hosts from an early hour on the morning of the late battle until its close, says that a person unacquainted with military apriledly R. J. RICHARDSON, Janesville, Agent. movements could only make out vast columns of smoke, and hear incessant peals of heavy artillery, and the whistling of bullets. During several hours of the fight he was in company with Dr. Russell, who was mounted on a fine horse, and who explained to him some of the movements as they pro gressed.

Russell rode up to the flanks of the vari ous divisions engaged, and saw the distance they were apart, and the effect of the living, the LYE AND RAR, will be found fully qualified to which was decidedly in favor of the Union troops. Dr. Russell seemed to have anticipated some disaster in the rear, from a casial remark to the effect that the battle was won "if no mishap overtakes the rear of the federal forces." As he explained to Capt. Dollivar some of the movements, he lent him his glass to see for himself. He said that our troops held their own like veterang when opposed by superior numbers, but acked steadiness in falling back.

Dr. Russell saw the rebel cavalry as they merged from the woods, and remarked to Capt. Dolliver that they numbered about a thousand, and Capt. Dolliver himself says be thinks that Dr. Russell is about right in his estimate. A very small force of even infantry properly posted, could have driven them off the field; but the force was not at hand. They charged among the teamster-, and created a panic which was more destructive than their awords.

Captain Dolliver remarked to Dr. Russell that he thought the troops from the front as i they came up would stop the retrent at a an extraordinary and unitecedented patronage. certain point; but the Doctor said, "No, they are all more or less infected; it is painful-very painful; so we must look out | H. B. BRYANT, D. V. HELL, H. D. STRATTON. to make good our own letreat."

Capt. Dolliver and Dr. Russell retreated in company until all danger from the victorious rebels was past.

stitute is greatly enlayed and with the improvements which the business experience of the principals enables them constantly to introduce for the benefit of their rious rebels was past.

Capt. Dolliver says that the men suffered much from want of water, and that they had been inspired with the hope of General Butler bearing down upon one flank and Gen. Patterson upon the other, while they and the student at care introduced to the practical drove in the center. They fought outlident workings and contine of business as conducted in banks, drove in the center. They fought confident counting rooms, tallicad ofness, etc. that victory was within their grasp and knew not the accident in the rear until too late to retrieve it.

from an exchange, refers to Surgeon Lewis or Russell. We do not recollect a surgeon by the name of Irwin in the second, though there may be:

Dr. J. H. Irwin, surgeon of the 2d Wisconsin regiment, was chased by one of the black horse cavalry, who fired within ten! feet of the surgeon, at the same time shouting, "surrender, you d---- d abolition scoundrel!" The ball grazed the head of Dr. I., who at the same time made a big leap into a clump of woods. The trooper rode around to hend him off, but his opponent meantime managed to load his rille, and when the trooper next appeared, shot [him through the chest. He fell sideways, the saddle turning with bim, and the frightened horse galloped off with his wounded or dead rider daugling by the stirrups.

A CRICAGO COMPANY PRISONERS OF WAR. crat, writing from Camp Rolla, Mo., under date of July 26th, states that on the night of the 21th, Captain Wadsworth of company I, 13th Illinois (Wyman's) regiment, went out towards Lane's Prairie with sixty -A correspondent of the St. Louis Demowent out towards Lane's Prairie with sixty of his men to hunt up a body of rebels and have not returned. On the night of New Carriage Manufactory the 25th, a messenger came into camp and said that Capt. DAILY GAZETTE.

THE LONDON TIMES' CORRESPONDENT AT THE BATTLE OF BULL'S RUN:- Capt. Dolliver, of this city, who was near the contend-ing hosts from an early hour on the morn-ing of the late battle until its close, says that a person unacquainted with military movements could only make out vast columns of smoke, and hear incessant peals of heavy artillery, and the whistling of bullets. During several hours of the fight he was in company with Dr. Russell, who was mounted on a fine horse, and who explained to him some of the movements as they pro-

Russell rode up to the flanks of the various divisions engaged, and saw the distance they were apart, and the effect of the firing; which was decidedly in favor of the Union troops. Dr. Russell seemed to have anticipated some disaster in the rear, from a cas ual remark to the effect that the battle was won "if no mishap overtakes the rear of the federal forces." As he explained to Capt. Dollivar some of the movements, he lent-him his glass to see for himself. He said that our troops held their own like veterans when opposed by superior numbers, but incked steadiness in falling back.

Dr. Russell saw the rebel cavalry as they emerged from the woods, and remarked to Capt. Dolliver that they numbered about a thousand, and Capt. Dolliver himself says he thinks that Dr. Russell is about right in his estimate. A very small force of even infantry properly posted, could have driven them off the field; but the force was not at W. H. TALLMAN, ... H. W. COLLINS hand. They charged among the teamsters and created a panic which was more do structive than their swords.

Captain Dolliver remarked to Dr. Russell

that he thought the troops from the front as they came up would stop the retreat at a certain point; but the Doctor said, "No, they are all more or less infected; it is painful—very painful; so we must look out to make good our own retreat."

Capt. Dolliver and Dr. Russell retreated in company until all danger from the victorious rebels was past. Capt. Dolliver says that the men suffered much from want of water, and that they had been inspired with the hope of General Butler bearing down upon one flank and Gen. Patterson upon the other, while they drove in the center. They fought confident that victory was within their grasp, and knew not the accident in the rear until too THE TREASON OF PATTERSON CONFIRMED. -While we feel proud in publishing the following private dispatch from the gallant captain of the Lochiel Greys, the people of Pennsylvania will read its confirmation of the treason or the imbecility of Patterson with shame and indignation. The Lochiel Greys have maintained the honor of the state capital and their own reputation aspatriots and soldiers, while Gen. Patterson has lowered the dignity of the state of his adoption and the country that reposed confidence in his valor and devotion:

BALTIMORE, July 24. MR. GEO. BERGNER :- The Lochiel Greys yesterday received peremptory orders from Gen. Patterson at Harper's Ferry to proceed at once to Harrisburg by railroad. They have reluctantly obeyed, after having tendered unanimously to the department their need them. H. McCormick, Capt. -Harrisburg Telegraph of Wednesday.

HAIR BREADTH ESCAPE OF A WISCONSIN Sungeon.—The following, which we copy from an exchange, refers to Surgeon Lewis or Russell. We do not recollect a surgeon by the name of Irwin in the second, though there may be:

Dr. J. H. Irwin, surgeon of the 2d Wisconsin regiment, was chased by one of the black horse cavalry, who fired within ten feet of the surgeon, at the same time shouting, "surrender, you d- d abolition scoundrel!" The ball grazed the head of Dr. I., who at the same time made a big leap into a clump of woods. The trooper rode around to head him off, but his oppo-nent meantime managed to load his rifle, and when the trooper next appeared, shot him through the chest. He fell sideways, the saddle turning with him, and the fright-ened horse galloped off with his wounded or dead rider daugling by the stirrups.

A CHICAGO COMPANY PRISONERS OF WAR. -A correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat, writing from Camp Rolla, Mo., under date of July 26th, states that on the night of the 24th, Captain Wadsworth of com-pany I, 13th Illinois (Wyman's) regiment, went out towards Lane's Prairie with sixty of his men to hunt up a body of rebels, and have not returned. On the night of the 25th, a messenger came into camp and said that Capt. Wadsworth and his men had been suddenly surrounded by a party of rebels, numbering about five hundred, and were all taken prisoners. A force of three companies and several mounted riflemen were immediately sent out to aid or release Capt. Wadsworth, and were expected to reach where he was by 8 o'clock on the morning of the 26th. Capt. Wads-worth is a citizen of Chicago, and is well known; a large part of his company is from Chicago. The brothers Williams, the from Chicago. The brothers Williams, the well known detectives, were members of his company, and one of them was a lieu-tenant. We hope to hear of their escape.

THE NEW POSTAGE STAMP.-The post-office department has given notice of the expected new issue of postage stamps, on or about the 1st of August next, with a view of suppressing, as soon as possible, the old issue. The new stamps will have in the upper corners the figures indicating the de-nomination, and in the lower corners the letters "U. S."—thus clearly distinguishing them from the old ones; and there will also be some difference in the general appearauce, caused by lively coloring, though the present shades will be preserved.

Quite an amusing incident occurred at one of the Washington theatres a few evenings since. A brigand was trying to abduct a beautiful lady, that's the way the play went, and she was struggling to free herself, when a burly fellow in the pit cried out, "Sis, why in h—l don't you call for the

All now over 60 years of age. Three years since I became blind from Cataract in both eyes. Soon after I became blind an attempt to restore my sight by an operation was made in this city, which was unsuccessful. Hearing of the reputation of Dr. Folsom, as a skillful oculiet, I was induced to consult him, though with very little hopes of relief. The dector proposed an operation, to which I consented, which resulted in almost Perfect Restoration of Sight to one eye. He afterwards performed an operation on the other eye, with success. I am now enjoying the inestimable bleshing of good vision, and a much better general state of health than before.

The difference between the bearing of the civilized soldiers of the north and the barbarous hordes of the south, as exhibited during this rebellion, is so great that the dullest or most prejudiced must see and acknowledge it. From the Milwaukse Sentinel. Interesting Letter from the Second CAMP CORCORAN,

Monday Night, July 22, '61. Once again we are back in the vicinity of Washington, having passed through a battle that will ever have a full page in the history of battles. The full report of it you have seen, and my work will be to give only a few scenes connected with the Secand Wisconsin Regiment, which, from the many who narrowly watched us, has received nov a few encomiums.

On Sunday morning, July 21st, at 2 o' clock A. Y., our camp near Centerville, was aroused by the cry "Fall in to march."— The men were ready and eager to be up, it being supposed that the commander-in-chief of the division had made preparations for us to go on and complete a victory which we felt sure was before us. The Second Wisconsin, 79th, 69th and 13th New York, with Sherman's battery and Capt. Thompson's troop of 100 horse, formed one brigade, while two Connecticut and two Ohio regiments, with company E. U. S. artillery, and a troop of 100 horse, formed another. Both were under the command of Gen. Tyler, and formed the centre of McDowell's grand army. The right wing was under the command of Gen. Hunter, and the left, under Gen. Heintzleman. The right and left were to close on the wings of the enemy's fortifications, extending to a distance of six miles, while the centre was to attack their principal fortresses.

Our wing waited until nearly daylight before starting, as the others had a much longer distance to go; but at length we were under way. To Bull's Run was only a distance of three miles, which was soon reached. Here we felt ourselves in the midst of the enemy's works. The ground we were approaching was known to be full of masked batteries but a few days before, and now the march was necessarily slow and tedions.

On the enemy's side, as we drew near, nothing out of the usual course of events could be seen. All seemed as natural as though the roads were not alive with armed men and filled with masked batteries.

After reconnoitering awhile, the large rifle cannon began picking out some good marks. Several shots were made, but they were not returned, when some one suggest oners, bayonet the wounded and set fire to | ed that a deep rayine, which could be seen. was a good seclusion. A shot directed there, sent forth into the open field at least 500 cavalry, who scattered like chaff in every direction, but soon returned. The big gun continued its work, and the riderless horses that came flying out, several of which came over to our lines, showed that it was no idle play. Sherman, too, opened his battery, almost within inusket shot of the Connecticut regiments, opened upon them, and then battery after battery poured in, clump of trees.

The men threw themselves upon the ground, with their arms ready to come to a charge, and although the fire was hot and If it converts the Saxon race into Sepoys | heavy, only one man was killed and two and Sionx, is it not the duty of the Saxon | wounded, both of the Connecticut. The fire of the big gun and of Sherman's and Co. E batteries was directed against those of the enemy, and in a remarkably short space of time, so accurate was the aim, they were all silenced.

> Almost the same instant our battery commenced, that of the left wing opened in the stronghold we had attempted to take a few march, the right pressing, formed in line, crossing Bull's Run, fires from batteries opened on the columns, and in this movement several were killed. The rebels seemed to possess innumerable batteries. They had them everywhere, and no point where a gun could be planted to have an effect upon our column, seems to have been neglected. The column soon crossed, and we went up their march to their old rendezvous, some the mountain road, we could see the enemy to Washington, others to Alexandria, and ly active, and goes for a rigid examination flying in companies, in squads and in regiments, before Gen. Hunter's men, towards a long and narrow piece of woods, while from the right they came pouring down in the same hasty manner before Gen. Heintzleman's men. The ravine, against which fire had at first been directed, seemed filled with dead. Bodies were lying in every direction, showing that the loss from shot forward, in pursuit of the flying rebels until | They feel that they have fought bravely, cartridge boxes, when the battle line was and lientenants of companies exhibited a formed so as to completely hem in the rebel few rods to rally, all in hopes that the encmy would withdraw from their ambush, and ್ಯ ಕರುlow to give a fair fight. The command to fall back was given by

Gen. Tyler, who it is supposed acted from the order of Gen. McDowell. The fortress behind which the enemy was entreuched was built of crossed railroad bars and logs, and behind these was an army of at least 70,000 men, arrayed so as fill up the whole line in front, the rear column loading and the front, two deep firing continually. Before the order for retreat was given the battle was fairly won, and victory would have been surrendered to the federal flag, hut as the rebels were about giving up, Gen. Johnston arrived from Manassas Gap, with 18,000 fresh troops. It was supposed that Gen. Patterson was close upon him, but such was not the case, he, for some reason, which I have not yet learned, having left the track. When the order to fall back was given, the regiments of the army gave way, then rallied, and as the rebel troops showed themselves outside the entrenchments, poured in upon them volley after volley, but finding it fruitless to continue the fight, they received orders to give way, and take up their line of retreat. They did this by regiments and companies in admirable order, but hundreds fell out, and forming in squads fell behind. and seeking shelter behind logs and trees, commenced an Indian fight upon the rebel cavalry, which came out of the woods, to the number of 1,000, to pursue the strag-glers. They dropped from the saddle in squads under the fire. This Indian skirmishing was a protection to the retreating army; but many of those who were giving the uid, suffered in consequence, as they were taken prisoners, when they got down so few in numbers as to offer little resistince to the rebels. Among the prisoners known to be taken

S. P. Jackson of La Crosse, a member of Co. B. He had his arm broken by a musket hall and was taken by the cavalry, together with a squad of seven Wisconsin boys. When they were being taken off, a few of the boys rallied and fired into the cavalry, calling upon the Union prisoners o escape. They all did so but Jackson, who was taken off. Before the others escaped Jackson told the officer of the cavalry that he was useless to them, as his arm was broken. The reply was that he should be taken care of. "Yes," replied Jackson, "the same as our wounded men at Bull's Run the other day. You bayoneted all our wounded mcn." "It's a lie," replied the officer. "It is not," replied Jackson, "you killed every one of our wounded men."-"Our orders are to take care of the wounded, and we fight humanely. To be sure there are some d-d rascals in every army who fight like tigers, and kill the wounded, but we prevent it when we can." At this, one of them spoke up and said, "Not by a d--d sight; we shall kill every hellhound of them we take." The New Orlenns Zonave who was taken prisoner, also said, "You may kill me if you please, and you may win the battle to day, but we will whip you to-morrow when our recruits get in, and then every one of you that falls into our hands will be butchered." This appeared to be the general sentiment, that no mercy was to be shown, and that all who fell into their hands would have no pleasant situation.

Many of those captured afterwards escaped by a ruse of trick. Ruby, of the Oshkosh company, was kept some time, but escaped by playing Indian, while Whiting, of the La Crosse company escaped by yellthey must retreat. The cavalry thought it one of their own officers who gave the command, and scattered, when Whitney escaped. A number of just such cases occurred Capt. Colwell, of Co. B acted the hero all the way through. He rallied his men and led them on to positions where it would scarcely be deemed men could go. He captured one piece of artillery, he and his men taking the piece by main force and bauling t a long distance off, and then returned to the fight. The Wisconsin regiment was the last body off the field, and their run was caused by the rebel cavalry. Had they been less brave their loss in prisoners would have been greater, as they remained in squads and charged upon the cavalry every time they approached. The retreating column also had to contend against a raking fire of artillery. As they crossed the Run the rebels had a fine rake with their guns, and kept up a constant fire of order to aid Hunter. On the route and in grape and canister. The loss from this sortie, however, was not heavy. The enemy did not follow up the retreat, which shows conclusively that they did not consider it a great victory. The retreat was continued to Centerville, when a halt was made for an hour's rest. The regiments were then re formed, and continued others to Fort Corcoran; the retreat being of all officers appointed to active military covered by two regiments who were not in duty.

Johnson arrived with his troops, the rebels were whipped, although at no one time did the federal army have more than fifteen regiments in the field; and but for Johnston's arrival, they would have left very suddenly and shell was terriffic. Forever float that standard sheet? Where breathes the foe but falls before us With Freedom's soil beneath our feet, And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us.

The Barbarities of Southern Soldiers.

The brutal treatment of our wounded by the rebels, after the battle at Manassas can not be questioned. The testimony of wit nesses so numerous will not be denied. The character of the outrages are so ferocious, that we wonder if those who committed them are indeed the men whom we have called brethren; we can scarcely credit the fact that these infuriated savages are, or have been Americans, and that they are descended from the same ancestral slock with the people of the north.

The difference between the bearing of the civilized soldiers of the north and the barbarous hordes of the south, as exhibited during this rebellion, is so great that the dullest or most prejudiced must see and acknowledge it. Our soldiers have become so well satisfied of the truth of it that they appear determined to take the fullest revenge at the next battle.

If the great army of the Union becomes thoroughly imbued with this sentiment of retaliation it must have a marked effect upon the future conduct of the war. The government will be obliged to change its mild course towards the rebels. The soldiers and their friends, the people, will demand that rebellion shall be treated as a crime, and the criminal punished. If we are to give our young men and our wealth to put down the banditti who, in their attempt to destroy the government, slay prisoners, bayonet the wounded and set fire to and burn hospitals, with their inmates, our people will insist that the rebels shall forfeit their lives and property.

It would be a pertinent inquiry why the soldiers of the southern army are so barbarous, and way they exhibit so much less civilization in the conduct of the war?---We do not think any rational and unprejudiced mind can avoid the conclusion that it is because there is slavery in one section and no slavery in the other.

Now, if slavery so debases and barbarizes a people, ought it not to be got rid of? If it converts the Saxon race into Sepoys and Sioux, is it not the duty of the Saxon people, uncontaminated with the evil principle which has caused us all so much trouble, and has thrown a cloud of barbarism over a portion of our country, to slay the monster while we have the opportunity?

Wisely Sensitive .- Mayor Vilas intends taking a trip for his health, and for fear days before. They were very soon silenced, that busybodies will say if he goes east, that he is traveling at the expense of the state, as an aid, wet or dry nurse to some regiment, he has considerately determined to the center making the circuit around, in their guns, and kept up a constant fire of plimentary to somebody! Have things reached that condition that a citizen of Madison who desires to take a pleasure trip, and pay his own bills with his own money, must leave the track of the army to avoid the suspicion of traveling at the expense of the state?

DESERTERS.—Two deserters from the 5th regiment were captured at Waupun, and handed over to Col. Cutler, at Camp Randall, to be returned to their regiment. The U. S. army regulations fix the sum of $30 for each deserter apprehended and delivered to the nearest U. S. military post.

West Gens. Butler and Patterson have been very quiet of late. They have occupied their time in remanding 'contrabands' to slavery, and paying the masters for the services of their chattles. Butler sent four hundred of them away from Fortress Monroe, and Patterson held all that came to his camp and returned them to their masters.

PEACHES .- B. F. Pendleton is daily receiving large lots of this and other delicious ripe fruits, direct from the growers.

Special despatch to the Cincinnati Commercial. WASHINGTON, July 29. Gen. Patterson gives as one excuse for his failure that he could get no army wag-ons, because orders from the war department obliged him to procure wagons only from one particular Pennsylvania manufacturer-another Cameronian exploit. Gen. McClellan is most active and unremitting in the supervision of the whole army. His frequent presence among them has already inspired confidence, and contributed to efface all the effects of the disaster before Manassas.

Col. Farnham, of the Fire Zouaves, has become insune from the effects of exposure and hardships, and imagines himself lead-ing attacks on the enemy's batteries.

The house, after much squabbling, passed the direct tax bill, adding three per cent income tax, and five cents per gallon for distilled and two cents for fermented liquors. The income tax is all on salaries, profits, interest, etc., over six hundred dollars per annum. All democrats and southern Americans voted against the bill, which passed by the small majority of seventeen.

A Minnesota boy, at Manassas, was rushed upon by four colored soldiers—full-blooded Africans; three were shot by Zouaves, the fourth attempted to pin him to the ground with his bayonet, which he parried, which gave a slight wound upon his thigh, and run into the pround its whole length, and, before he could extricate it, the boy and, before he could extricate it, the boy shot him through the body, which was so near that the blaze of the gunset his clothes pa fire.

The we nad our usual and like expressions. As a general thing, the batteries could have been silenced, but as we had no support from this source, the order was given to fall back, and the regiments fell back a Baltimore Cor. N. Y. World.

From the Milwaukee Sentinel. Regiment. Camp Concoran, Monday Night, July 22, 61.

Once again we are back in the vicinity of Washington, having passed through a battle that will over-bave a full page in the history of battles. The full report of it you have seen, and my work will be to give only a few scenes connected with the Second Wisconsin Regiment, which, from the many who narrowly watched us, has re-

On Sunday morning, July 21st, at 2 o'-clock A. M., our camp near Centerville, was aroused by the cry "Fall in to march."— The men were ready and eager to be up, it being supposed that the commander in chief of the division had made preparations for us to go on and complete a victory which we felt sure was before us. The Second Wisconsin, 79th, 69th and 13th New York, with Sherman's battery and Capt. Thompson's troop of 100 borse, formed one brig ade, while two Connecticut and two Ohio regiments, with company E. U. S. artillery, and a troop of 100 horse, formed another.

Both were under the command of Gen. Ty. ler, and formed the centre of McDowell's grand army. The right wing was under the command of Gen. Hunter, and the left, under Gen. Heintzleman. The right and left were to close on the wings of the enemy's fortifications, extending to a distance of six miles, while the centre was to attack their principal fortresses.

Our wing waited until nearly daylight pefore starting, as the others had a much longer distance to go; but at length we were under way. To Bull's Run was only a distance of three miles, which was soon reached. Here we felt ourselves in the midst of the enemy's works. The ground we were approaching was known to be full of masked batteries but a few days before, and now the march was necessarily slow and tedious.

The 2nd Wisconsin and the 79th Nev York took the right of the road and filing off through the woods, flanked with the lef on the road, while the balance of the brig ade took the left hand side, and Sherman's battery, with "President Lincoln's Baby waker," as a large 32 pound rifle cannon was called, took the road, the infantry acting as a support to the battery. The column, in this order, worked its way up grad ually to the edge of the woods, and came to a halt. Just beyond the woods was an opening some 500 rods in extent; then came Bull's Run, a deep ravine, and beyond this high up, rose the natural fortifications of the rebels. No better place could have been selected, and no other natural fortification so easy of self-support could have

On the enemy's side, as we drew near, nothing out of the usual course of events could be seen. All seemed as natural as though the roads were not alive with armed men and filled with masked batteries.

After reconnoitering awhile, the large rifle cannon began picking out some good marks. Several shots were made, but they were not returned, when some one suggested that a deep ravine, which could be seen, was a good seclusion. A shot directed there, sent forth into the open field at least 500 cavalry, who scattered like chaff in every direction, but soon returned. The big gun continued its work, and the riderless horses that came flying out, several of which came over to our lines, showed that it was o idle play. Sherman, too, opened his battery, and, at the same time, a fnasked battery, almost within musket shot of the Connecticut regiments, opened upon them, and then battery after battery poured in, and the shower of lead came out from every clump of trees.

The men threw themselves upon the ground, with their arms ready to come to a charge, and although the fire was hot and heavy, only one man was killed and two wounded, both of the Connecticut. The fire of the big gun and of Sherman's and Co. E batteries was directed against those of the enemy, and in a remarkably short space of time, so accurate was the aim, they vere all silenced. Almost the same instant our battery com menced, that of the left wing opened in the stronghold we had attempted to take a few and when the guns of Gen. Hunter's wing opened, the other wings started on the march, the right pressing, formed in line, go west, and visit St. Paul and the falls, made famous by the "Sons of Malta."—

Madison Patriot.

Really, Mr. Patriot, you are highly comed to possess innumerable batteries. They had them everywhere, and no point where a gun could be planted to have an effect upon our column, seems to have been neglected. The column soon crossed, and we went up the mountain road, we could see the enemy flying in companies, in squads and in regi-ments, before Gen. Hunter's men, towards a long and narrow piece of woods, while from the right they came pouring down in the same hasty manner before Gen. Heintzleman's men. The ravine, against which fire had at first been directed, seemed filled with dead. Bodies were lying in every direction, showing that the loss from and shell was terriffic. With a loud shout for the "stars and stripes" our boys pushed forward, in pursuit of the flying rebels until we reached Hunter's command, it having halted to be recruited. The open plain before us had been the enemy's camping ground, and muskets, blankets, knapsacks, canteens, haversacks and dead hodies, were lying about indiscriminately. Our boys threw off everything, down to clothing and formed so as to completely hem in the rebel stronghold. Now the work commenced in earnest. All along the line of woods batteries opened one after the other, and shot, shell, canister and grape poured in upon us. From the position we occupied it did but little serious lamage, although it whistled with so shrill a series of noises as to startle the most brave. By some neglect we had little artil. lery with us, it having remained behind .-The Rhode Island buttery opened on one of the enemy's, but it had taken a position so near them that before it could be brought into actual service it was used up. Cur-lisle's battery and Sherman's opened a heavy fire, and as far as two batteries could be of use they were. They silenced gun after gun, and at length got out of ammunition. By this time the federal troops got ready for a charge at the point of the bayonet, the battle line being extended all along the en-emy's lines, with the regular cavalry and marines, together with Eilsworth's Zonaves on the right. The Wisconsin Second occupied about the center of the line. They lay cal stuff, is among them as a prisoner, and for some little time under cover of a hill, is looking after our wounded who are priswhile the shot was pouring over them, and then, when the charge was ordered, filed on up a narrow lane, and came into line. It vas a dangerous position, as they were subject to a cross fire, and many of them fell wounded. The grand body now moved forward at a louble-quick, until they came within musket shot of the enemy, and then was poured in upon them a most murderous fire of musketry. Never was there anything like it.—

Street. If a soldier, after such insults, opeus his mouth by way of retailiation, the musketry, three batteries opeus his mouth by way of retailiation, the were pouring in grape and canister, while our own batteries were silenced from want of aminunition. Had we had our usual few rods to rally, all in hopes that the enemy would withdraw from their ambush, and dollow to give a fair fight.

The command to fall back was given by Gen. Tyler, who it is supposed acted from the order of Gen. McDowell.

The fortress behind which the enemy was entrenched was built of crossed railroad bars and logs, and behind these was an army of at least 70,000 men, arrayed so as fill up the whole line in front, the rear column loading and the front, two deep firing continually.

Before the order for retreat was given the battle was fairly won, and victory would have been surrendered to the federal flag, but as the rebels were about giving up, Gen. Johnston arrived from Manassas Gap, with 18,000 fresh troops. It was supposed that Gen. Patterson was close upon him, but such was not the case, he, for some reason which I have not yet learned, having left the track.

When the order to fall back was given, the regiments of the army gave way, then rallied, and as the rebel troops showed themselves outside the entrenchments, poured in upon them volley after volley, but finding it fruitless to continue the fight, they received orders to give way, and take up their line of retreat. They did this by regiments and companies in admirable order, but hundreds fell out, and forming in squads fell behind, and seeking shelter behind logs and trees, commenced an Indian fight upon the rebel cavalry, which came out of the woods, to the number of 1,000, to pursue the stragglers. They dropped from the saddle in squads under the fire. This Indian skirmshing was a protection to the retreating army; but many of those who were giving the aid, suffered in consequence, as they were taken prisoners, when they got down so few in numbers as to offer little resistance to the rebels.

Among the prisoners known to be taken is S. P. Jackso of La Crosse, a member of Co. B. He had his arm broken by a musket ball and was taken by the cavalry, together with a squad of seven Wisconsin boss. When they were being taken off, a few of the boys rellied and fired into the cavalry, calling upon the Union prisoners to escape. They all did so but Jackson, who was taken off. Before the others escaped Jackson told the officer of the cavalthat he was useless to them, as his arm was broken. The reply was that he should be taken care of. "Yes," replied Jackson, the same as our wounded men at Bull's Run the other day. You bayoneted all our wounded men." "It's a lie," replied the officer. "It is not," replied Jackson, "you killed every one of our wounded men."-Our orders are to take care of the wounded, and we fight humanely. To be sure there are some d-d rascals in every army who fight like tigers, and kill the wounded, but we prevent it when we can." this, one of them spoke up and said, "Not -d sight; we shall kill every hellhound of them we take." The New Oreans Zouave who was taken prisoner, also said, "You may kill me if you please, and you may win the battle to day, but we will whip you to morrow when our recruits get in, and then every one of you that falls into our hands will be butchered." This appeared to be the general sentiment, that no mercy was to be shown, and that all who fell into their hands would have no pleasant situation. Many of those captured afterwards es caped by a ruse or trick. Ruby, of the Oshkosh company, was kept some time, but escaped by playing Indian, while Whiting, of the La Crosse company escaped by yelling that the artillery was upon them, and they must retreat. The cavalry thought it they must retreat. The cavalry thought it one of their own officers who gave the command, and scattered, when Whitney escaped. A number of just such cases occurred. Capt. Colwell, of Co. B acted the hero all the way through. He rallied his men and led them on to positions where it would scarcely be deemed men could go. He captured one piece of artillery, he and his men taking the piece by main force and hauling it a long distance off, and then returned to the fight. The Wisconsin regiment was the last body off the field, and their run was caused by the rebel cavalry. Had they been less brave their loss in prisoners would have been greater, as they remained in squads and charged upon the cavalry every time they approached. The retreating column also had to contend against a raking fire of artillery. As they crossed the Run the rebels had a fine rake with grape and canister. The loss from this sortie, however, was not heavy.

The enemy did not follow up the retreat, which shows conclusively that they did not consider it a great victory. The retreat was continued to Centerville, when a halt was made for an hour's rest. The regiments were then re formed, and continued their march to their old rendezvous, some to Washington, others to Alexandria, and others to Fort Corcoran; the retreat being covered by two regiments who were not in the field.

It is certain that just before Gen. Johnson arrived with his troops, the rebels were whipped, although at no one time did the federal army have more than fifteen regiments in the field; and but for Johnston' arrival, they would bave left very suddenly for Manassas Gap. The federal troops are not disheartened at the result of the conflict. They feel that they have fought bravely, but that they had not well disciplined men to lead them on. After the conflict had commenced, but little was seen of them; but after the retreat was sounded, and while the column was marching until it had got beyond all danger, very few of the field offi-cers were to be seen. Many of the captains cartridge boxes, when the battle line was and lieutenants of companies exhibited a courage and intuitive knowledge of military matters that was deserving of a better fate.

We lost most of our blankets, haversacks, &c., that were thrown off when we started to join Hunter, and we lost many of our muskets in the field, but their places were supplied with Sharpe's rifles, with which the enemy were well supplied. I think the trade is about even. They were well supplied with fighting material, having all that is necessary, all bearing the trade mark of the United States.

Just as I am finishing for the present, a member of Capt. Langworthy's company has come in from the enemy. He was taken prisoner, and set to work digging graves for the dead. Fearful are the preparations made, so immense is the number. All will be huddled into common graves, friend and | capital both from the north and south. foe together, without prayers or service. It is asserted that a determination was expressed by many to bayonet such of our were badly wounded, and some proceeded to execute the threat, when stop-ped by an officer. Dr. Irwin, of our medical stuff, is among them as a prisoner, and oners. How Soldiers are Insulted in Balti-ORE.—It is astonishing to see the indignities to which the soldiers stationed around the city are subjected. If they walk along the streets they are often hooted at by se-cessionists, with such remarks as "that fellow would make good manure for Virginia soil." And the ladies (?) even give vent to their wrath by spitting upon them in the street. If a soldier, after such insults, newspapers in sympathy with the secession movement raise the cry of brutal soldiery and like expressions. As a general thing,

House .- Mr. Olin, from the military committee, reported a bill adding to West Point cadets a number equal to that of senators and representatives, to be selected from the states on the recommendation of members of congress as prescribed by the former law. When districts shall neglect to send representatives to congress, the president shall fill the vacancy corresponding with the representation of such district. All cadets now in or who may hereafter enter the military academy shall swear to support the constitution, bear true allegiance to the national government, and maintain and defend the sovereignty of the United States paramount to any and all allegiance, sovereignty or fealty to any country whatsoever, and that they will obey all orders of superior officers. Any cadet refusing to take this oath is to be dismissed from the academy. Mr. Vallindingham objected.

Mr. Stevens moved to lay the bill on the able. Motion lost.

Mr. Spaulding offered a resolution that the senate concurring both houses close the present session on Friday next, at noon. Mr. English, from the committee on naval affairs, reported a bill for the temporary increase of the number of midshipmen at the naval academy. He explained that the effect of the bill would be to add 184 new pupils, there being 120 vacancies from rebel states. Bill passed.

Mr. Rice, of Mass., from naval committee, reported a bill authorizing the construction of twelve small side-wheel steamers of light draught and great swiftness, and appropriating $1,200,000 for that purpose. Mr. R. said the naval force was not adequate to maintain an effective blockade and suppress privateering. The war department is engaged in ascertaining what vessels are suitable for these purposes. The steamers proposed, being of light draught, can penetrate into bayous and inlets, and can carry one or two guns. Passed.

All accounts seem to agree that the conederates are about making some grand forward movement.

A very plausible plan has obtained currency, which is that they propose advancing a small force direct to Alexandria and Arington, to engage the intrenchments on the south of the Potomac and divert the attenion of the federal army, and at the same time advance the main body, of their army in two wings, the one northward to Edward's Ferry and the other southeast to the mouth of the Occoquan or the Aquia Creek, at which points the Potomac will be crossed and a simultaneous attack be made on the Î give this as a current rumor, to be re

WASHINGTON, July 29. The statement that there has been any change in the departments of Gen. McDow ell and Gen. Mansfield, is not true. Both epartments remain as they were, but Gen. McClellan, as a superior officer, takes command of both, and becomes an intermediate between Gen. Scott and Gens. McDowell and Mansfield.

There have been fewer men on the streets to-day than any day since the occupation of Washington by the troops. Hereafter the officers are to keep out of hotels, and with their men, perfecting themselves in military knowledge, and disciplining and looking after the wants of their men.

Reliable information received in Washington leaves no doubt that Patterson wil fully refrained from holding Johnston in check. He was heard to say that he would take care of himself, and the army on the Potomac must do the same-that he was not going to do all the work and let Mc-Dowell's column reap all the glory.

WASHINGTON, July 30. Col. Stone arrived here to-day from Harper's Ferry, having left there last evening His division is now stationed there. He says Gen. WASHINGTON, July 30.

Rumor reports that the Cheyenes and Kiowas, 6000 strong, and Cheyenes 380 in number, and a number of Pawnees and Ottoes, some of the latter seeking aid of the Pottawatamies and Ortoes. Some political contentions have occurred in southern Nebraska. Secessionists have been in constant communication with the Indians of that section. The Ottoes acknowledge to having been solicited to aid the southern confederacy. A majority of the warriors were at one time in favor of rendering the rebels assistance, but they had been dissuaded from doing so. Settlers are in great alarm and many have left with their families. Assistance is now on the way from Kansas to help the Union men of that section.

And if I am a judge of human nature, I know she meant what she said. Well, soon we, the Janes ville Light Guard, had given them three times three and a badger and were off for Cleveland, where we arrived about five in the afternoon and where we got our supper | tions of this department providing for the in the cars, then gave our regular three ! times three and a badger and were off for a night ride to Pittsburgh.

We met the Ohio 14th regiment at Toledo, or rather, between Toledo and Cleveland. They were going home from the war, being three months men. They said they were going to come back in a few days for the war. They have seen service, and have lost 19 men killed, and several more wound ed. They were laden with trophies of the war, hats, flags, &c.

After a hard night's ride, we arrived in Pittsburg on the morning of the 26th, about seven o'clock; took a warm cup of coffee, and after giving the sturdy Germans three times three, a badger and a tiger, we began to clumb the Alleghanies. If we were well treated by the Buckeyes, we were none the less well cared for by the Pennsylvanians. I have not time or ability to tell you all the acts of kindness shown to us by the people of Pennsylvania. Suffice it to say, that the President himself could be no better cared for than we were.

We arrived here about ten o'clock last evening, and as soon as we could we pitched our tents, stationed the guards, we were fast asleep. But before we lay down, we opened the boxes of food sent by us from Janesville, and invited the field officers to sup with us; and the colonel, major and doctor "went in," as the saying is, with a culthet he was a Union man, and that he will. When the major found out where the cakes, eggs and other things good for the body came from, he declared he would come to Janesville and stay, when he made another | He stated that he had always made a good run for congress.

The boys are nearly all well; some four or five have made themselves unwell by esting green fruit and drinking pop beer. A Touching Incident.—The Springfield Mo.) Republican says: "We learn that when Capt. She was unreinitting in her attentions to her father. On Friday evening last, her father was taken from Monroe to Hannibal. On the way the train was fired upon by a party of rebels. When the firing commenced, the devoted child bent her little body over her father's head to shield him from danger or death.'

A JUST TRIBUTE TO THE SOLDIERS WHO WERE IN THE BATTLE.-It may be invidi ons to distinguish between the merits of the several bodies engaged in the battle of July 21; but it is also due to the regiments of foreign origin to remark the eminent courage and efficiency of their service. To the 69th regiment too much praise for unflinching and persistent gallantry can hardly be awarded. It is with sincere sorrow we have to record the loss of their brave cominsuder, who, in a military career so brief, had extended to the whole country the sentiments of respect for his patriotism, energy and selfdevotion, which he had long since secured in this city. The safety of Capt. Mongher, who was throughout in the heat of the fight and had his horse shot under him, will be a matter of sincere congratulation among his legion of friends. The 79th (Highland. landers) seem to have emulated the Irish regiment in its sturdy and manly fighting qualities. And when the retreat had been ordered, it was the musterly skill of the German brigade under Col. Blenker, which covered the movement, and prevented accumulated disasters. This tribute, so well earned, cannot detract from the credit of the native troops. The immense, sacrifice of life sustained by the Fire Zonaves and the 71st regiment proves how dauntless both of them must have held the most dangerous positions, and arged their conflict with the enemy. But the fact must not prevent us from according that prominence in the div-

THREE MONTHS' MEN.-There was at Washington, on the 24th of July, some 17, 000 three months' men, awaiting their discharge to return home. They would not be discharged, however, it was said, until ample reinforcements had arrived. Such is said to be the dislike of the officers on the part of the men, that it would be difficult to procure the re-enlistment of the men. The greater part of them, we apprehend, will enlist after a short idleness at home, in new companies, and under new commanders.

Reported for the Janesville Gazette, BUMP & GRAY. GRAIN AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

JANESVILLE, JULY 31, 1861. To-day has been the dullest one for a long time in the grain market, which is owing to the fact that most of the farmers are busity engaged barvesting their grain. Receipts were only about 200 bushels, which sold at a range of 55@ 65 for fair shipping to good milling ratuples. Receipts of oats and corn were extremely light we note sale of one load of eats at 15c, and a few bags of corn at 16c per 60 lbs. No other transactions.

We have of late heard considerable complaint of the ew wheat crop from different sections of the country; firmers representing that the chintz bug and army sorm are making great havor in many fields. We anve examined several fields of wheat within the past three days and find that the chintz bug are fast destroying the late sown, while the early looks well. though as a general thing the grain stands thin on the ground. The quality of the wheat will probably be good, but the yield light, not to exceed an average of If bushels per acro through Rock county. We confinue yesterday a quotations:

J. M. BURGESS, Postmaster. From the Wisconsin Second.

The following is from a private in the Janesville company with the second regi-ARLINGTON, July 28, 1861.

Our regiment is reorganizing for another campaign; the fourth regiment is at Baltimore, they will be here to night; the fifth and sixth will arrive on Tuesday or Wednesday; the second, fourth, fifth and sixth will form the Wisconsin brigade.

You will be anxious to know in Janesville who are missing in company D. We cannot tell yet, certainly, as some are in Alexandria. I think John Hamilton is a prisoner, and also the surgeon of the regiment.

Because we retreated you must not think that we were badly beaten, for the report made by the rebels themselves makes their number of killed and wounded three times as many as ours. They had six times as many men in the action as we did-12,000 to 70,000; and their cannon outnumbered ours in the same proportion, besides being masked and protected. If we could have had ten thousand fresh troops we would have gained the battle. We will try them again with a stronger force.

I suppose you wonder if we were not afraid of the bullets. I did not fear them, although they came so near as to scrape my ear. It was indeed a miracle that more of our men were not killed.

It is reported that the rebels burned the house which was used as a hospital; if they have done this there is a time for revenge to come-a day of retribution. The rebels are as treacherous as the Mexicans; they loaded their guns under the union flag, pretending to be United States soldiers, and then hoisted the secession flag and fired upon our regiment. The bullets then flew thick and fast. Such is southern chivalry! WILLIAM SMITH.

Company D. 2d Reg., Wis. Vol. FIRE ZOUAVES.

This company meets for drill every Monday, Wednesday and Friday evening, at their armory, opposite the American House. All persons, either in the city or from the country, who are desirous to join this company, can receive all information necessary by enquiring of Col. White or myself. The company will certainly go into quarters immediately after harvest.

W. B. BRITTON, Janesville, Aug. 1, 1861. Captain. Rock County Sharp Shooters.

This company will rendezvous at Janesville upon the 14th day of July next. Any able-bodied men who wish to join this company will find copies of our roll at H. A. Patterson's office, Lawrence & Atwood's store, or by calling upon either of the officers of the company. All men from the country who are willing to enlist will be boarded at the expense of the state, as we have already been authorized to do so. It is desirable that this company fill up immediately, as it will be mustered into service by the 20th of August or by the 1st of September next.

A prompt response is expected of those who have joined this company.

C. G. GILLETT, Capt. JANESVILLE, July 30th, 1861.

Gov. Randall was in New York city on the day of the late battle, and not on the battle ground. The Milwaukee News re ported the story of his being present.

A Cool Place!-Our engine room has to day been a rare place for pleasure seekers. The thermometer stood at only 125°! Iced punches and lemonades would have found a liberal sale.

THE WEATHER .- This article deserves a favorable notice. The thermometer has stood at 98° in the shade! It speaks for itself, though "a puff" would do no harm.

Нурворнени.--Two swine belonging to Mr. Culver, and which were on his farm north of this city, died yesterday from bydrophobia. They were bitten about two weeks ago by the mad dog which went thro' our streets biting every animal in his way. People were very much excited at that time about the dogs, but just now, when the effects of the bites of the rabid animal begin to show themseives, they permit their dogs to ran about town unmuzzled, as usual.-Let the officers continue to take care of the dogs.

Good Mars .- Full and accurate maps of the seat of war are at this time indispensable. W. W. Holden, Esq., agent of the Phoenix Ins. Co., Hartford, sends us one of the best we have seen. We are also in debted to Mr. Dearborn, the bookseller, for · Lloyd's railroad map of the United States, which is very convenient, inasmuch as it has the distances from place to place on all the railroads in the country.

FIRE ZOUAVES .- We are informed by Capt. Britton that there are now fifty nine It meets for drill three evenings each week, with from 30 to 40 men present, and have made a commendable progress. We ask attention to the card of Capt. Britton, largest arteries, and a half teaspoonful will which we publish to-day.

Good CLOTHING .- We saw yesterday some clothing manufactured for the army by McKey & Bro. It was made from cloth manufactured by F. A. Wheeler & Sons. This cloth is of a superior quality, and the articles are made in the most substantial manner. We don't believe that the state or the soldiers would be injured if a little more work should be "distributed" out of Correspondence of the Daily Gazelle. From the Fifth Regiment.

DEAR GAZETTE :- Here we are at Camp Cobb, named in honor of our very much ing to the feelings that generally characteresteemed colonel, Amasa Cobb. We have had a very pleasant journey thus far, we have been well received by all, and especially by the ladies. God bless them all, may their lives ever be as full of joy as their hearts and hands have been of generosity to us thus far. After we left Janesville, from every house and hamlet in the land there was to be seen numberless flags, handkerchiefs, and from every man, woman and boy was heard the benediction, " God bless to the rebels," "Do your duty" and others too numerous to mention. When we arrived in Chicago we were met by a vast concourse of people, and the streets from the C. & N. W. R. R. depot were crowded with admiring spectators, so numerous were they that it was with difficulty that the guides were able to keep their direction when marching by platoons .--From many a voice in the crowd we heard ourselves complimented as a fine body of men, which compliments we received as honest men should, that is as the truth.-We took a supper at Chicago of bread and cheese, which we had brought from Camp Randall and rinsed our mouths with coffee which we obtained there; then the sound 'all aboard" was heard, and soon we were on our way to Toledo. We arrived in Toledo the next day about noon, and there we were paraded in two lines. The order for us to open ranks was given, and after the front rank had about faced the ladies of with bread, butter, cheese, cakes and pies, and when they had passed and every mun eaten his fill and filled his haversack until both soldier and sack were near borsting; hog's kettle, sweetened with sour molasses of poetic renown, clear as honey, delicious as nectar, sweetened with genuine coffee sugar, and creamed in true western style. then to cap the climax, served hot. I need not tell you that after we had been riding all night and nearly all of the forenoon in the dust, that we did justice to the ladies, endeavors to aid us by giving us food. I asked one of those Roses of Sharon how we could ever repay them for all their kindness and benevolence, and the answer was, "Never desert your flag." And if I am a judge of human nature, I know she meant what she said. Well, soon we, the Janesville Light Guard, had given them three times three and a badger and were off for Cleveland, where we arrived about five in the afternoon and where we got our supper in the cars, then gave our regular three times three and a badger and were off for a night ride to Pittsburgh. We met the Ohio 14th regiment at Toledo, or rather, between Toledo and Cleveland. They were going some from the war, being three months men. They said they were going to come back in a few days for the war. They have seen service, and have lost 19 men killed, and several more wound ed. They were laden with trophies of the war, hats, flags, &c. After a hard night's ride, we arrived in Pittsburg on the morning of the 26th, about seven o'clock; took a warm cup of coffee, and after giving the sturdy Germans three times three, a badger and a tiger, we began to climb the Alleghanies. If we were well treated by the Buckeyes, we were none the less well cared for by the Pennsylvanians. I have not time or ability to tell you all the acts of kindness shown to us by the people of Pennsylvania. Suffice it to say, that the President himself could be no better cared or than we were. We arrived here about ten o'clock last evening, and as soon as we could we pitched our tents, stationed the guards, we were fast asleep. But before we lay down, we opened the boxes of food sent by us from Janesville, and invited the field officers to sup with us; and the colonel, major and doctor "went in," as the saying is, with a will. When the major found out where the cakes, eggs and other things good for the body run for congress.

The boys are nearly all well; some four or five have made themselves unwell by eating green fruit and drinking pop beer. We have the largest company on the ground now : our number is one hundred and eighteen, rank and file. This morning, a regiment from Indiana encamped near us .-They are a lusty looking set of men. We expect to be off from here soon, at the longest by Monday, and shall soon be on the enemy's land. Tell the Union men to take good care of the rebels at home and we will months men, but will enlist again soon for

Excuse haste, and believe me yours in love for the Union.

A SUGGESTION TO VOUNTEERS. -- The New York Examiner says: A medical friend, whose European experience gives value to his testimony, and whose heart has been pained at the number of deaths which have already taken place in our army from the loss of blood from wounds, begs us to suggest that the per-chloride of iron, an article to be obtained from all our larger druggists, will check arrest bleeding even from these. He advises that each non-commissioned officer should be provided with a small flat tin botpocket, and that the bottle should have around it a little bat cotton, on which the iron could be dropped or poured to apply it. This simple device would have saved several valuable lives at the affair at Vienna and at Great Bethel. Will not the sanitary commission see to this matter? The captured U.S. surgeons are employed in attending the wounded soldiers.

ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS. THE PURITAN AND WALL STREET.—The news of the reverse at Manassas is recived in different localities in a spirit correspondize the people there. A: Boston paper: piously heads the column which philosophizes and persistent gallantry can hardly be on the event with the solemn text:-" Shall awarded. we receive good at the hands of the Lord, and shall we not receive evil?"-whilst a New York journal tells the outside world that the terrible cutting of its people made government stocks decline "to the extent of four per cent !".

PRESIDENT BUCHANAN'S PICTURE TURNED Our.—The painter and owner of a portrait you," "Good luck to the Badgers," "Death of Mr. Buchanan, on exhibition at the Rotunda of the capitol of Washington has been ordered to peremptorily remove it. SCYTHE RECIMENT.—A regiment of Germans is forming in New York city, to be armed with scythes. Similar regiments were engaged in the Polish Revolution. TRUTH FROM A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR. In an advertisement by the Eastern Counties Railroad Company of some uncalled for goods, the letter "1" had dropped from the word lawful, and it read, "People to whom these packages are directed, are requested to come forward and pay the awful charges on the same.".

AN ESTIMATE OF OUR LOSS AT MANASSAS. The New York Herald publishes the following as the losses of our army at Manassas. basing its statements on "high military authority:"-Killed, 380; wounded, 500; wagons with provisions lost, 25; cannon spiked and lost, 17; small arms dropped (about) 2,000. Of the wounded, fully one hundred were very little injured though struck, and Toledo came along bearing baskets loaded of the small arms dropped on the route, one half were picked up by the ordnance wagons next day.

A CAUTION TO CROPPLES.—Dr. Liebnitz says that cutting the hair close to the head, then came the coffee, borne by the same a custom which is now in vogue, causes the fair angelic hands, and it was coffee too, it sap which naturally invigorates the hair to was none of your muddy stuff, made in a strike to the brain, thus giving that ungainly peculiarity of expression which is noticed and creamed with chalk, but genuine coffee in those whose heads have been cropped.

"COMPLICATED CASE,"-One of the ichest cases that has come to our notice lately, was the following, which happened not a thousand miles from Wisconsin, and is a morsel good enough for the Knicker-bocker. We omit names for prudential reasons:

A certain pompous commissary general, who happens to be the butt of the boys generally, was accosted by a farmer the other day, when the following conversation and facts transpired : Farmer.—Well, Mr. Commissary, my son has been rejected from the regiment on ac count of his age, and I have come to take him home. He has a pair of shoes belonging to the state—what shall I do with them? Commissary .- Well, abem! Let me see.

(Looking over the army regulations, etc.) I find nothing in the regulations or instructions of this department providing for the return of shoes, and yet the shoes are the property of the state, and I ought to see to it. Really, what can I do? Farmer .- O, I can tell you. I can buy another pair and leave them in the place of those my boy has pastly worn.

Commissary.—Yes, yes, that will do. (The farmer starts for the door to buy his boy a pair of shoes.) Commissary .- Hold on, sir! See here! You can't buy a pair of shoes without an ment! Here the farmer bust and "went off" to buy his boy a pair of shoes, leaving the complicated commissary studying on the perplexities of his complicated case.—Madson Patriot.

18th, occurs this item:

"Stephen A. Aushall was brought before the recorder yesterday morning, charged with uttering treasonable and seditious language, and with being a disciple of the Lin-coin-Seward school. He openly proclaim-ed that he was a Union man, and that he would die for the Union; that he would go to Virginia, join the United States army and help whip the south, and that Jeff. The accused claims to be a Kentuckian and is forty-five years old. He was sent be-fore the mayor to be disposed of."

A TOUCHING INCIDENT .- The Springfield (Mo.) Republican says: "We learn that when Capt. Hotchkiss was wounded at his little daughter, a girl about eight or ten years of age, went from her home to where the captain was lying at the seminary at Monroe. She was unremitting in her attentions to her father. On Friday evening last, her father was taken from Monroe to Hannibal. On the way the abroad. The 13th Pennsylvanis regiment is encamped near us. They were three child bent her little body over her father's head to shield him from danger or death.

> STOPPING THE WAR STAMPEDE .- The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes :

When the panie-stricken crowd turned for Washington, and the foremost of them had got past Centerville, they were headed off by Senators Wade and Chandler, Representatives Blake, Riddle and Morris, Mr. Brown, sergeant-at-arms of the senate, Mr. Eaton of Detroit, and Thomas Brown of Cleveland. These gentlemen, armed with Maynard rifles and navy revolvers, sprang suddenly from their carriages, and presenting their weapons, in loud voices commanding the fagitives to halt and turn back. Their hold and determined manner brought most at this point at a stand-still. Many on horseback attempted to dash by them, and had their horses seized by the bits. Some of the fugitives were armed and menaced these gentlemen, and one, a power ful man, supposed to be a teamster, shot tle of this, containing say a couple of Mr. Eaton through the wrist, as he held his onness which he can wear in his breast horse by the bridle rein. None, however, were permitted to pass, except an army courier who exhibited his dispatches. Mr. Wade and his party held the crowd until the arrival of the 2d New Jersey regiment, then on its way to the battle ground, the colonel of which turned back the flying soldiers and teamsters. Two or three officers were stopped and turned back. This check, though finally overcome, was creditable to our senators and associates.

A JUST TRIBUTE TO THE SOLDIERS WHO WERE IN THE BATTLE. It may be invidi-ons to distinguish between the merits of the several bodies engaged in the battle of July 21; but it is also due to the regiments of foreign origin to remark the eminent courage PERMIT TO FREE FIRE PROPERTY and efficiency of their service. To the 69th regiment too much praise for unflinching It is with sincere sorrow we have to record the loss of their brave commander, who, in a military career so brief, had extended to the whole country the sentiments of respect for his patriotism, energy and selfdevotion, which he had long since secured in this city. The safety of Capt. Meagher, who was throughout in the heat of the fight and had his horse shot under him, will be matter of sincere congratulation among his legion of friends. The 79th (Highland landers) seem to have emulated the Irish regiment in its stordy and manly fighting qualities. And when the retreat had been ordered, it was the masterly skill of the German brigade under Col. Blenker, which covered the movement, and prevented accumulated disasters. This tribute, so well earned, cannot detract from the credit of the native troops. The immense sacrifice of life shatained by the Fire Zouavts and the 71st regiment proves how dauntless both of them must have held the most dangerous positions, and orged their conflicts with the enemy. But the fact must not prevent us

Celt, the Gael, and the Teuton .- New York THREE MONTHS' MEN.—There was at Washington, on the 24th of July, some 17, 000 three months' men, awaiting their dis-charge to return home. Such is said to be the dislike of the officers on the part of the men, that it would be difficult to procure the re-enlistment of the men. reater part of them, we apprehend, will enlist after a short idleness at home, in new companies, and under new commanders.

Janesville Wholesale Market. Reported for the Janesville Gazette, BUMP & GRAY.

JANESVILLE, July 31, 1861. To-day has been the dullest one for a long time in the grain market, which is owing to the fact that most o the farmers are busily engaged harvesting their grain Receipts were only about 200 bushels, which sold at a range of 55@66 for fair shipping to good milling samples. Receipts of outs and corn were extremely light we note sale of one load of outs at 16c, and a few bags of corn at 16c per 60 lbs. No other transactions.

We have of late heard considerable complaint of the new wheat crop from different sections of the country; farmers representing that the chintz bug and army worm are making great havoc in many fields. We have examined several fields of wheat within the past three days and find that the chintz bug are fast detroying the late sown, while the early looks well, though as a general thing the grain stands thin on the ground. The quality of the wheat will probably be good, but the yield light, not to exceed an average of 4 bushels per acre through Rock county. We continue yesterday's quotations:

WHEAT-good to choice milling spring 65a68, curency; fair to good dry shipping 50a60; rejected 30a 45. The above figures are for currency, a deduction of 5 and 80 per bushel is made payable ingold. CORN-IGals per 60 lbs. shelled, and 14a16c per 72

OATS-good local and shipping demand at 14:15. RYE—quiet at 20x25c per 80 lbs. BARLEY—dult sale at 15x25c per 50 lbs., common to ned quality.

TIMOTHY SEED-dull at 1,40a1,75 per 46 lbs. POTATOES-plenty and very dull at 10s15c, pur BUTTER -plenty at 10a1234c fair to choice rell. EGGS-plenty and dull at 6c per dozen. WOOL-ranges at 15a27c for common to choice fair clean clips.

In a half hour at ordinary pumping speed, I supply my stock of from forty to fifty head of cattle and horses with one of May's Patent Pumps. Well 70 feet deep, last 30 feet drilled. I can find no fault with this pump, and use it in place of another kind that was very often ut of repair. Being composed of few and strong pieces, and built on scientific principles, I think they must be very durable. R. W. SCHENCK. Bradford, Rock county, Wis., January 20th, 1861.

I supply with water 690 slicep, some 66 head of cattle and 10 head of horses, with May's Patent Pump. Its great strength, apparent durability and above all the great amount of water it raises in a short time, and its easy working, gives it with me a decided preference over any other pump in the market.

C. M CLARK. Whitewater, Walworth Co., Wis., Jan. 31st, 1861. Since the 1st of October last we have been using one of May's Patent Pumps, and it gives us entire satisfaction. Our well is 126 feet deep and the pump is worked by horse power or by hand. In addition to pumping water for stock and farm purposes, we use large quan-

titles for our Brewery. REEVES & WADDLE. Middleton, Dane county, Wis., Jan. 22d, 1861. I am using one of May's Patent Pumps in place of a deep well pump of another kind, that was often out of order and worked hard. Well 122 feet deep, 72 feet drilled in solid rock, and pump placed 101 feet from surface. Its great strength and simplicity pleases me, cording to directions. and am surprised and gratified with the large amount of water ruled with little labor, 6 to 8 full strokes of the lever filling a backet. I deem it one of the most valuable improvements of the age for raising water. JOHN TRACY. Center, Rock county, Wis., Feb. 27th, 1861.

Pumps, With Engines. I am using one of May's Patent Pumps and Self-Regulating Wind Engine (or Mill) on one of my farms near Janesville. Well 83 feet deep. Pump and mill used together, or may be separated in a moment. One to two hours daily is sufficient to pump water for my stock. Also, the pump works very easy by hand and is the first one, after trying different kinds, that gives me entire ratisfaction. Having no bolts, packing, suction pipe, or pumping rods, and being made heavy and strong, think they must be very durable. A. HOSKINS.

I am using a wind engine, and pump of May's pat out in a well 65 feet deep. I deem them very valuable improvements, and agree with Mr. Hoskins in the above expressed opinion. I had been using a Seneca Falls pump that did not answer my purpose. WM. SOHENCK.

Bradford, Rock Co., Wis., Jan. 24th, 1861.

Engines. Rock Terrace, Wis., Feb. 6th, 1861. Since November 1858, I have been using one of May's

Patent Wind Engines, pumping water from a well 186 feet deep. The Engine is a powerful one, often pumping fifty barrels of water per day. It stands 110 feet from the well and the power is communicated from the Engine to the well, underground. I deem these Engines of great value, saving a vas amount of hard manual labor, and as their merits are understood, think they must come into general use. These pumps and engines have taken first premiums when exhibited in competition at state and county fairs.

HE above are First Class, justly popular, and promoted paying companies. They invite investigation into thair condition and solicit business entirely upon their real merits. In point of solvency and reliability and honorable dealing, they have but face equals, and no superiors. They are founded upon the very best securities in the world—first class bonds and mortgages upon property in New York and Brooklyn—securities that have not, for the past teny sears, deprectated below par, and are every way more reliable and permanent than railroad, bank, and other stocks, which are subject to the fluctuations of the market, and ilable, in times of panic, as the experience of the past teaches, to become the fluctuations of the market, and Hable, in times of panic, as the experience of the past teaches, to become almost, if not entirely, valueless. And while there are Companies entering the field of compelition, well calculated to mislead by publishing partial and one-side data themeurs of their condition, and without a cash surplus on hand sufficient to reinsure their outstanding risks, the above named companies always have and keep over and above their capital twice the amount, and in most instances four times, needed for the reinsurance of all their risks. Middleton, Dane county, Wis., Jan. 22d, 1861. I am using one of May's Patent Pumps in place of deep well pump of another kind, that was often out of order and worked hard. Well 122 feet deep, 72 feet drilled in solid rock, and pump placed 101 feet from surface. Its great strength and simplicity pleases me, and am surprised and gratified with the large amoun of water raised with little labor, 6 to 8 full strokes of the lever filling a bucket. I doem it one of the most valuable improvements of the age for raising water. JOHN TRACY. Center, Rock county, Wis., Feb. 27th, 1861.

Pumps, With Engines.

I am using one of May's Patent Pumps and Self-Regula ting Wind Engine (or Mill) on one of my farms nea Janesville. Well 83 feet deep. Pump and mill used together, or may be separated in a moment. One to two hours daily is sufficient to pump water for my stock Also, the pamp works very easy by hand andisthe first one, after trying different kinds, that gives me entire satisfaction. Having no bolts, packing, suction pipe, or pumping rods, and being made heavy and strong, think A. HOSKINS. they must be very durable.

Janesville, Jan. 11th, 1861.

I am using a wind engine, and pump of May's pat ent in a well 65 feet deep. I deem them very valuable improvements, and agree with Mr. Hoskins in the above expressed opinion. I had been using a Senson Fall pump that did not answer my purpose.

Bradford, Rock Co., Wis., Jan. 24th, 1861.

Engines.

Rock Terrace, Wis., Feb. 6th, 1801. Since November 1858, I have been using one of May' Patent Wind Engines, pumping water from a well 18 feet deep. The Engine is a powerful one, often pump ing fifty barrels of water per day. It stands 110 fee from the well and the power is communicated from the Engine to the well, underground.

I deem these Engines of great value, saving a vas amount of hard manual labor, and as their merits are understood, think they must come into general use. These pumps and engines have taken first premium when exhibited in competition at state and county fairs

DAILY GAZETTE.

THE LONDON TIMES' CORRESPONDENT AT THE BATTLE OF BULL'S RUN. - Capt. Dolliver, of this city, who was near the contending hosts from an early hour on the morning of the late battle until its close, says that a person unacquainted with inilitary movements could only make out vast columns of smoke, and hear incessant peals of heavy artillery, and the whistling of bullets. During several hours of the fight he was in company with Dr. Russell, who was mounted on a fine horse, and who explained to him some of the movements as they pro-

Russell rode up to the flanks of the various divisions engaged, and saw the distance they were apart, and the effect of the firing, which was decidedly in favor of the Union troops. Dr. Russell seemed to have anticipated some disaster in the rear, from a casual remark to the effect that the battle was won "if no mishap overtakes the rear of the federal forces." As he explained to Cart.
Dollivar some of the movements, he lent him his glass to see for himself. He said that our troops held their own like veterans when opposed by superior numbers, but lacked steadiness in falling back.

Dr. Russell saw the rebel cavalry as they emerged from the woods, and remarked to Capt. Dolliver that they numbered about a thousand, and Capt. Dolliver himself says he thinks that Dr. Russell is about right in his estimate. A very small force of even infantry properly posted, could have driven them off the field; but the force was not at hand. They charged among the teamsters, and created a panic which was more destructive than their swords. Captain Dolliver remarked to Dr. Russell that he thought the troops from the front as they came up would stop the retreat at a certain point; but the Doctor said, "No, they are all more or less infected; it is painful-very painful; so we must look out to make good our own retreat." Capt. Dolliver and Dr. Russell retreated in company until all danger from the victorious rebels was past.

Capt. Dolliver says that the men suffered much from want of water, and that they had been inspired with the hope of General Butler bearing down upon one flank and Gen. Patterson upon the other, while they drove in the center. They fought confident that victory was within their grasp and knew not the accident in the rear until too late to retrieve it.

THE TREASON OF PATTERSON CONFIRMED. -While we feel proud in publishing the following private dispatch from the gallant captain of the Lochiel Greys, the people of Pennsylvania will read its confirmation of the treason or the imbecility of Patterson with shame and indignation. The Lochiel Greys have maintained the honor of the state capital and their own reputation aspatriots and soldiers, while Gen. Patterson has lowered the dignity of the state of his adoption and the country that reposed confidence in his valor and devotion BALTIMORE, July 24. yesterday received peremptory orders from Gen. Patterson at Harper's Ferry to proceed at once to Harrisburg by railroad. They have reluctantly obeyed, after baving tendered unanimously to the department their services so long as the government may need them. H. McCormick, Capt.

HAIR-BREADTH ESCAPE OF A WISCONSIN Surgeon.-The following, which we copy from an exchange, refers to Surgeon Lewis or Russell. We do not recollect a surgeon by the name of Irwin in the second, though

Dr. J. H. Irwin, surgeon of the 2d Wisconsin regiment, was chased by one of the black horse cavalry, who fired within ten feet of the surgeon, at the same time shouting, "surrender, you d- d abolition scoundrel!" The ball grazed the head of Dr. I., who at the same time made a big leap into a clump of woods. The trooper rode around to head him off, but his opponent meantime managed to load his rifle, and when the trooper next appeared, shot him through the chest. He fell sideways, the saddle turning with him, and the fright-ened horse galloped off with his wounded or dead rider dangling by the stirrups.

A CHICAGO COMPANY PRISONERS OF WAR. -A correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat, writing from Camp Rolla, Mo., under date of July 26th, states that on the night of the 24th, Captain Wadsworth of company I, 13th Illinois (Wyman's) regiment, went out towards Lane's Prairie with sixty of his men to hunt up a body of rebels, and have not returned. On the night of New Carriage Manufactory, the 25th, a messenger came into camp and said that Capt. Wadsworth and his men had been suddenly surrounded by a party of rebels, numbering about five hundred, and were all taken prisoners. A force of three companies and several mounted riflemen were immediately sent out to aid or release Capt. Wadsworth, and were expected to reach where he was by 8 o'clock on the morning of the 26th. Capt. Wadsworth is a citizen of Chicago, and is well known; a large part of his company is from Chicago. The brothers Williams, the well known detectives, were members of his company, and one of them was a lieu-tenant. We hope to hear of their escape.

The new stamps will have in the upper corners the figures indicating the de nomination, and in the lower corners the letters "U. Forever float that standard sheet! Where breathes the foe but falls before us? With Freedom's soil beneath our feet, And Freedom's banner streaming o'er us!

The Barbaritles of Southern Soldiers

The brutal treatment of our wounded by the rebels, after the battle at Manassas cannot be questioned. The testimony of witnesses so numerous will not be denied. The character of the outrages are so ferocious, that we wonder if those who committed them are indeed the men whom we have called brethren; we can scarcely credit the fact that these infuriated savages are, or have been Americans, and that they are descended from the same ancestral stock with the people of the north.

The difference between the bearing of barbarous hordes of the south, as exhibited during this rebellion, is so great that the dullest or most prejudiced must see and acknowledge it. Our soldiers have become so well satisfied of the truth of it that they appear determined to take the fullest revenge at the next battle.

If the great army of the Union becomes thoroughly imbued with this sentiment of retaliation it must have a marked effect upon the future conduct of the war. The government will be obliged to change its mild course towards the rebels. The soldiers and their friends, the people, will demand that rebellion shall be treated as a crime, and the criminal punished. If we are to give our young men and our wealth to put down the banditti who, in their attempt to destroy the government, slay pris- were not returned, when some one suggest oners, bayonet the wounded and set fire to ed that a deep ravine, which could be seen and burn hospitals, with their inmates, our people will insist that the rebels shall forfeit their lives and property.

It would be a pertinent inquiry why the soldiers of the southern army are so barbarons, and why they exhibit so much less civilization in the conduct of the war ?-We do not think any rational and unprejudiced mind can avoid the conclusion that it is because there is slavery in one section and no slavery in the other.

Now, if slavery so debases and barbarizes a people, ought it not to be got rid of? If it converts the Saxon race into Sepoys and Sioux, is it not the duty of the Saxon people, uncontaminated with the evil principle which has caused us all so much trouble, and has thrown a cloud of barbarism over a portion of our country, to slay were all silenced.

WISELY SENSITIVE. Mayor Vilas intends taking a trip for his health, and for fear that busybodies will say if he goes east, that he is traveling at the expense of the state. as an aid, wet or dry nurse to some regi-ment, he has considerately determined to go west, and visit St. Paul and the falls, made famous by the "Sons of Malta."-Madison Patriot.

Really, Mr. Patriot, you are highly complimentary to somebody! Have things reached that condition that a citizen of Madison who desires to take a pleasure trip, our column, seems to have been neglected. and pay his own bills with his own money, must leave the track of the army to avoid the suspicion of traveling at the expense of the state?

DESERTERS .- Two deserters from the 5th regiment were captured at Waupun, and handed over to Col. Cutler, at Camp Randall, to be returned to their regiment. The U. S. army regulations fix the sum of $30 for each deserter apprehended and delivered to the nearest U.S. military post.

Gens. Butler and Patterson have been very quiet of late. They have occupied their time in remanding 'contrabands' to slavery, and paying the masters for the services of their chattles. Butler sent four hundred of them away from Fortress Monroe, and Patterson held all that came to his camp and returned them to their masters.

From the Milwaukee Sentinel. Interesting Letter from the Second CAMP CORCORAN,

Monday Night, July 22, 61. Once again we are back in the vicinity of Washington, having passed through a battle that will ever have a full page in the history of battles. The full report of it you have seen, and my work will be to give only a few scenes connected with the Second Wisconsin Regiment, which, from the many who narrowly watched us, has received not a few encominms.

On Sunday morning, July 21st, at 2 o'clock A. M.; our camp near Centerville, was aroused by the cry "Fall in to march."-The men were ready and eager to be up, it being supposed that the commander in chief of the division had made preparations for us to go on and complete a victory which we felt sure was before us. The Second Wisconsin, 79th, 69th and 13th New York, with Sherman's battery and Capt. Thompson's troop of 100 horse, formed one brig ade, while two Connecticut and two Ohio regiments, with company E. U. S. artillery, and a troop of 100 horse, formed another Both were under the command of Gen. Ty ler, and formed the centre of McDowell's grand army. The right wing was under the command of Gen. Hunter, and the left, un-der Gen. Heintzleman. The right and left were to close on the wings of the enemy's fortifications, extending to a distance of six miles, while the centre was to attack their principal fortresses.

Our wing waited until nearly daylight before starting, as the others had a much longer distance to go; but at length we were under way. To Bull's Ran was only a distance of three miles, which was soon reached. Here we felt ourselves in the midst of the enemy's works. The ground we were approaching was known to be full of masked batteries but a few days before. and now the march was necessarily slow and tedious.

The 2nd Wisconsin and the 79th New York took the right of the road and filing off through the woods, flanked with the left the civilized soldiers of the north and the on the road, while the balance of the brigade took the left hand side, and Sherman's battery, with "President Lincoln's Babywaker," as a large 32-pound rifle cannot was called, took the road, the infantry ac ting as a support to the battery. The column, in this order, worked its way up gradnally to the edge of the woods, and came to a halt. Just beyond the woods was an opening some 500 rods in extent; then came Bull's Run, a deep ravine, and beyond this, high up, rose the natural fortifications of the rebels. No better place could have been selected, and no other natural fortification so easy of self support could have

> On the enemy's side, as we drew near nothing out of the usual course of events could be seen. All seemed as natural as though the roads were not alive with armed men and filled with masked batteries.

> After reconnoitering awhile, the large ri-fle cannon began picking out some good marks. Several shots were made, but they was a good seclusion. A shot directed there, sent forth into the open field at least 500 cavalry, who scattered like chaff in every direction, but soon returned. The big gun continued its work, and the riderless horses that came flying out, several of which came over to our lines, showed that it was no idle play. Sherman, too, opened his battery, and, at the same time, a masked battery, almost within musket shot of the Connecticut regiments, opened upon them, and then battery after battery poured in, and the shower of lead came out from every clump of trees.

> The men threw themselves upon the ground, with their arms ready to come to a charge, and although the fire was hot and heavy, only one man was killed and two wounded, both of the Connecticut. The fire of the big gun and of Sherman's and Co. E batteries was directed against those of the enemy, and in a remarkably short space of time, so accurate was the aim, they

the monster while we have the opportunity? Almost the same instant our battery commenced, that of the left wing opened in the stronghold we had attempted to take a few days before. They were very soon silenced, and when the guns of Gen. Hunter's wing opened, the other wings started on the march, the right pressing, formed in line, the center making the circuit around, in order to aid Hunter. On the route and in crossing Bull's Run, fires from batteries opened on the columns, and in this move-ment several were killed. The rebels seemed to possess innumerable batteries. They had them everywhere, and no point where a gun could be planted to have an effect upon The column soon crossed, and we went up the mountain road, we could see the enemy flying in companies, in squads and in regiments, before Gen. Hunter's men, towards a long and narrow piece of woods, while from the right they came pouring down in the same hasty manner before Gen. Heintzleman's men. The ravine, against which fire had at first been directed, seemed filled with dead. Bodies were lying in every direction, showing that the loss from shot and shell was terriffic. With a loud shout for the "stars and stripes" our boys pushed forward, in pursuit of the fiving rebels until we reached Hunter's command, it having halted to be recruited. The open plain be fore us had been the enemy's camping ground, and muskets, blankets, knapsacks, canteens, haversacks and dead bodies, were lying about indiscriminately. Our boys threw off everything, down to clothing and > stronghold. Now the work commenced in earnest. All along the line of woods batteries opened one after the other, and shot, shell, canister and grape poured in upon us. From the position we occupied it did but little serious lamage, although it whistled with so shrill series of noises as to startle the most brave. By some neglect we had little artilery with us, it having remained behind .-The Rhode Island battery opened on one of the enemy's, but it had taken a position so near them that before it could be brought into actual service it was used up. Car-lisle's battery and Sherman's opened a heavy fire, and as far as two batteries could be of use they were. They silenced gun after gun, and at length got out of ammunition. By this time the federal troops got ready for a charge at the point of the bayonet, the hattle line being extended all along the enemy's lines, with the regular cavalry and marines, together with Ellsworth's Zouaves on the right. The Wisconsin Second occupied about the center of the line. They lay for some little time under cover of a hill, while the shot was pouring over them, and oners. then, when the charge was ordered, filed on up a narrow lane, and came into line. It was a dangerous position, as they were subject to a cross fire, and many of them fell wonnded. The grand body now moved forward at a double-quick, until they came within musket shot of the enemy, and then was poured in upon them a most murderous fire of musketry. Never was there anything like it .-Together with the musketry, three batteries opens his mouth by way of retailiation, the were pouring in grape and canister, while newspapers in sympathy with the secession our own batteries were silenced from want movement raise the cry of brutal soldiery of ammunition. few rods to cally, all in hopes that the enemy would withdraw from their ambush, and follow to give a fair fight.

The control of the co

The command to fall back was given by Gen. Tyler, who it is supposed acted from the order of Gen. McDowell.

The fortress behind which the enemy was entrenched was built of crossed railroad bars and logs, and behind these was an army of at least 70,000 men, arrayed so as fill up the whole line in front, the rear column loading and the front, two deep firing continually.

Before the order for retreat was given the battle was fairly won, and victory would have been surrendered to the federal flag, but as the rebels were about giving up, Gen. Johnston arrived from Manassas Gap, with 18,000 fresh troops. It was supposed that Gen. Patterson was close upon him, but such was not the case, he, for some reason, which I have not yet learned, having left the track.

When the order to fall back was given, the regiments of the army gave way, then rallied, and as the rebel troops showed themselves outside the entrenchments, poured in upon them volley after volley, but finding it fruitless to continue the fight, they received orders to give way, and take up their line of retreat. They did this by regiments and companies in admirable order, but hundreds fell out, and forming in squads fell behind, and seeking shelter behind logs and trees, commenced an Indian fight upon the rebel cavalry, which came out of the woods, to the number of 1,000, to pursue the stragglers. They dropped from the saddle in squads under the fire. This Indian skirmishing was a protection to the retreating army; but many of those who were giving the aid, suffered in consequence, as they were taken prisoners, when they got down so few in numbers as to offer little resistance to the rebels.

Among the prisoners known to be taken is S. P. Jackson of La Crosse, a member of Co. B. He had his arm broken by a musket ball and was taken by the cavalry, together with a squad of seven Wisconsin boys. When they were being taken off, a to flee to Ft. Monroe. few of the boys rallied and fired into the Gen. Butler ordered cavalry, calling upon the Union prisoners to escape. They all did so but Jackson, who was taken off. Before the others es caped Jackson told the officer of the cavalry that he was useless to them, as his arm was broken. The reply was that he should be taken care of. "Yes," replied Jackson, "the same as our wounded men at Bull's Run the other day. You bayoneted all our wounded men." "It's a lie," replied the officer. "It is not," replied Jackson, "you killed every one of our wounded men."-"Our orders are to take care of the wounded, and we fight humanely. To be sure there are some d-d rascals in every army who fight like tigers, and kill the wound ed, but we prevent it when we can. this, one of them spoke up and said, "Not by a d-d sight; we shall kill every hellhound of them we take." The New Orleans Zouave who was taken prisoner, also said, "You may kill me if you please, and you may win the battle to day, but we will whip you to-morrow when our recruits get in, and then every one of you that falls into our hands will be butchered." This appeared to be the general sentiment, that no mercy was to be shown, and that all who fell into their hands would have no pleasant situation.

Many of those captured afterwards escaped by a ruse or trick. Ruby, of the Oshkosh company, was kept some time, but escaped by playing Indian, while Whiting, of the La Crosse company escaped by yell ng that the artillery was upon them, and hey must retreat. The cavalry thought it one of their own officers who gave the comnand, and scattered, when Whitney escaped. A number of just such cases occurred. Capt. Colwell, of Co. B acted the hero all the way through. He rallied his men and led them on to positions where it would scarcely be deemed men could go. He captured one piece of artillery, he and his men taking the piece by main force and hauling it a long distance off, and then returned to the fight. The Wisconsin regiment was the last body off the field, and their run was caused by the rebel cavalry. Had they been less brave their loss in p RODETA would have been greater, as they remained in squads and charged upon the cavalry every time they approached. The retreat ing column also had to contend against a raking fire of artillery. As they crossed the Run the rebels had a fine rake with their guns, and kept up a constant fire of grape and canister. The loss from this

sortie, however, was not heavy. The enemy did not follow up the retreat, which shows conclusively that they did not consider it a great victory. The retreat was continued to Centerville, when a halt was made for an hour's rest. The regiments were then re formed, and continued their march to their old rendezvous, some to Washington, others to Alexandria, and others to Fort Corcoran; the retreat being covered by two regiments who were not in the field. It is certain that just before Gen. Johnston arrived with his troops, the rebels were whipped, although at no one time did the federal army have more than fifteen regiments in the field; and but for Johnston's arrival, they would have left very suddenly for Manassas Gap. The federal troops are not disheartened at the result of the conflict. They feel that they have fought bravely, but that they had not vell disciplined men to lead them on. After the conflict had commenced, but little was seen of them; but after the retreat was sounded, and while the column was marching until it had got beyond all danger, very few of the field officers were to be seen. Many of the captains and lieutenants of companies exhibited a courage and intuitive knowledge of military matters that was deserving of a better fate

We lost most of our blankets, haversacks, &c., that were thrown off when we started to join Hunter, and we lost many of our muskets in the field, but their places were supplied with Sharpe's rifles, with which the enemy were well supplied. I think the trade is about even. They were well supplied with fighting material, having all that is necessary, all bearing the trade mark of the United States. Just as I am finishing for the present, a member of Capt. Langworthy's company has come in from the enemy. He was taken prisoner, and set to work digging graves for the dead. Fearful are the preparations made, so immense is the number. All will be huddled into common graves, friend and foe together, without prayers or service. It is asserted that a determination was expressed by many to bayonet such of our men as as were badly wounded, and some proceeded to execute the threat, when stopped by an officer. Dr. Irwin, of our medical staff, is among them as a prisoner, and is looking after our wounded who are pris-

When districts shall neglect to send representatives to congress, the president shall fill the vacancy corresponding with the representation of such district. All cadets now in or who may hereafter enter the military academy shall awear to support the constitution, bear true allegiance to the national government, and maintain and defend the sovereignty of the United States paramount to any and all allegiance, sovereignty or fealty to any country whatsoever, and that they will obey all orders of superior officers. Any cadet refusing to take this oath is to be dismissed from the academy. Mr. Vallindingham objected.

present session on Friday next, at noon. Mr. English, from the committee on pava affairs, reported a bill for the temporary increase of the number of midshipmen at the naval academy. He explained that the effect of the bill would be to add 184 new pupils, there being 120 vacancies from rebel states. Bill passed.

Mr. Rice, of Mass., from naval committee, reported a bill authorizing the construction of twelve small side-wheel steamers of light draught and great swiftness, and appropriating $1,200,000 for that purpose. Mr. R. said the usval force was not adequate to maintain an effective blockade and suppress privateering. The war department is engaged in ascertaining what vessels are suitable for these purposes. This indicates some important movement on the part of the confederates, which is supposed o be in the direction of Harper's Ferry, as indicated yesterday, or for the invasion of Maryland from some other point.

All accounts seem to agree that the conederates are about making some grand forward movement.

A very plausible plan has obtained currency, which is that they propose advancing a small force direct to Alexandria and Arington, to engage the intrenchments on the south of the Potomac and divert the attention of the federal army, and at the same time advance the main body of their army in two wings, the one northward to Edward's Ferry and the other southeast to the mouth of the Occoquan or the Aquia Creek, at which points the Potomac will be crossed and a simultaneous attack be made on the capital both from the north and south.

Washington, July 29. The statement that there has been any change in the departments of Gen. McDow ell and Gen. Mansfield, is not true. Both departments remain as they were, but Gen. Because we retreated you must not think that we were badly beaten, for the report made by the rebels themselves makes their number of killed and wounded three times as many as ours. They had six times as many men in the action as we did-12,000 to 70,000; and their cannon ontnumbered ours in the same proportion, besides being masked and protected. If we could have

It is reported that the rebels burned the house which was used as a hospital; if they have done this there is a time for revenge to come-a day of retribution. CAMP COES, HARRISBURGE, July 27th, 1861.

DEAR GAZETTE :-- Here we are at Camp Cobb, named in honor of our very much esteemed colonel, Amasa Cobb. We have had a very pleasant journey thus far, we have been well received by all, and especially by the ladies. God bless them all, may their lives ever be a; full of joy as their hearts and hands have been of generosity to us thus far. After we left Janesville, from every house and hamlet in the land there was to be seen numberless flags, handkerchiefs, and from every man, woman and boy was heard the benediction, "God bless you," "Good luck to the Badgers," "Death too numerous to mention.

When we arrived in Chicago we were met by a vast concourse of people, and the streets from the C. & N. W. R. R. depot were crowded with admiring spectators, so numerous were they that it was with difficulty that the guides were able to keep their direction when marching by platoons.-From many a voice in the crowd we heard ourselves complimented as a fine body of men, which compliments we received as honest men should, that is as the truth .-We took a supper at Chicago of bread and cheese, which we had brought from Camp Randall and riused our mouths with coffee which we obtained there; then the sound "all aboard" was heard, and soon we were on our way to Toledo. We arrived in Toledo the next day about noon, and there we were paraded in two lines. The order for us to open ranks was given, and after the front rank had about faced the ladies of Toledo came along bearing baskets loaded with bread, butter, cheese, cakes and pies, and when they had passed and every man enten his fill and filled his haversack until both soldier and sack were near harsting; then came the coffee, borne by the same fair angelic hands, and it was coffee too, it sap which naturally invigorates the hair to was none of your muddy stuff, made in a hog's kettle, sweetened with sour molasses and creamed with chalk, but genuine coffee of poetic renown, clear as honey, delicious are as treacherous as the Mexicans; they as nectar, sweetened with genuine coffee sugar, and creamed in true western style. then to cap the climax, served hot. I need not tell you that after we had been riding all night and nearly all of the forenoon in the dust, that we did justice to the ladies, endeavors to aid us by giving us food. I asked one of those Roses of Sharon how we could ever repay them for all their kindness and benevolence, and the answer was, "Never desert your flag." And if I am a udge of human nature, I know she meant what she said. Well, soon we, the Janes. ville Light Guard, had given them three times three and a badger and were off for for than we were. We arrived here about ten o'clock last evening, and as soon as we could we pitched our tents, stationed the guards, we were fast asleep. But before we lay down, we opened the boxes of food sent by us from Sanesville, and invited the field officers to sup with us; and the colonel, major and will. A SUGGESTION TO VOUNTEERS. -The New York Examiner says:

A medical friend, whose European experience gives value to his testimony, and whose heart has been pained at the number of deaths which have already taken place in our army from the loss of blood from wounds, begs us to suggest that the perchloride of iron, an article to be obtained from all our larger druggists, will check hemorrage, even from large blood vessels, promptly and effectually. Four or five drops are sufficient to check completely the ses that each non-commissioned officer pocket, and that the bottle should have around it a little hat cotton, on which the iron could be dropped or poured to apply it. ALL SORTS OF PARAGRAPHS.

THE PURITAN AND WALL STREET.—The news of the reverse at Manassas is recived in different localities in a spirit corresponding to the feelings that generally characterize the people there. A Boston paper piously heads the column which philosophizes on the event with the solemn text:—" Shall we receive good at the hands of the Lord, and shall we not receive evil?"-whilst a New York journal tells the outside world of four per cent!"

PRESIDENT BUCHANAN'S PICTURE TURNED Our .- The painter and owner of a portrait of Mr. Buchanan, on exhibition at the Roto the rebels," "Do your duty" and others tunds of the capitol of Washington has been ordered to peremptorily remove it.

SCYTHE REGIMENT. -- A regiment of Germans is forming in New York city, to be armed with scythes. Similar regiments were engaged in the Polish Revolution.

TRUTH FROM A TYPOGRAPHICAL ERROR. In an advertisement by the Eastern Counties Railroad Company of some uncalled for goods, the letter "1" had dropped from the word lawful, and it read, "People to whom these packages are directed, are requested to come forward and pay the awful charges on the same."

AN ESTIMATE OF OUR LOSS AT MANASSAS. The New York Herald publishes the following as the losses of our army at Manassas, basing its statements on "high military authority:"-Killed, 380; wounded, 500; wagons with provisions lost, 25; cannon spiked and lost, 17; small arms dropped (about) 2,000. Of the wounded, fully one hundred were very little injured though struck, and of the small arms dropped on the route, one half were picked up by the ordnance wagons next day.

A CAUTION TO CROPPIES .- Dr. Liebnitz says that cutting the hair close to the head, a custom which is now in vogue, causes the strike to the brain, thus giving that ungainly peculiarity of expression which is noticed in those whose heads have been cropped.

A "COMPLICATED CASE."-One of the richest cases that has come to our notice lately, was the following, which happened not a thousand miles from Wisconsin, and is a morsel good enough for the Knickerbocker. We omit names for prudential reasons:

A certain pompous commissary general, who happens to be the butt of the boys generally, was accosted by a farmer the other day, when the following conversation and facts transpired:
Farmer.—Well, Mr. Commissary, my son

has been rejected from the regiment on account of his age, and I have come to take him home. He has a pair of shoes belonging to the state—what shall I do with them Commissary .- Well, aben! Let me see. Looking over the army regulations, etc.) find nothing in the regulations or instructions of this department providing for the return of shoes, and yet the shoes are the property of the state, and I ought to see to Really, what can I do?

Farmer.-O, I can tell you. I can buy nother pair and leave them in the place of those my hoy has pantly worn. Commissary.—Yes, yes, that will do. (The farmer starts for the door to buy nis boy a pair of shoes.) Commissary.—Hold on, sir! See here! You can't buy a pair of shoes without an

Commissary.-Hold on! Let me see I guess you are right. Hand me that or I guess you are right. Hand me may of der. (Takes it and tears it to pieces.)
Well, really I am puzzled what to do. This is the most complicated case that has come before this department since my appointment!

A BOLD UNION MAN IN NEW ORLEANS .-In the police reports of the Picayune of the 18th, occurs this item:
"Stephen A. Aushall was brought before the recorder yesterday morning, charged with uttering treasonable and seditions language, and with being a disciple of the Lincoln-Seward school. He openly proclaimdoctor "went in," as the saying is, with a will. When the major found out where the would die for the Union; that he would go to Virginia, join the United States army and help whip the south, and that Jeff. Davis came from, he declared he would come to was only endeavoring to rob the people.

A Touching Incident .- The Springfield Mo.) Republican says: "We learn that when Capt. Hotchkiss was wounded at Monroe, his little daughter, a girl about eight or ten years of age, went from her home to where the captain was lying at the seminary at Monroe. She was unremitting in her attentions to her father. On Friday evening last, her father was taken from Monroe to Hannibal. On the way the train was fired upon by a party of rebels. When the firing commenced, the devoted child bent her little body over her father's head to shield him from danger or death.

STOPPING THE WAR STAMPEDE.-The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Press writes:

When the panic stricken crowd turned for Washington, and the foremost of them had got past Centerville, they were headed off by Senators Wade and Chandler, Representatives Blake, Riddle and Morris, Mr. Brown, sergeant-at arms of the senate, Mr. Eaton of Detroit, and Thomas Brown of Cleveland. These gentlemen, armed with Maynard rifles and navy revolvers, sprang suddenly from their carriages, and presenting their weapons, in loud voices commanding the fugitives to halt and turn back. Their hold and determined manner brought most at this point at a stand still. Many on horseback attempted to dash by them largest arteries, and a half teaspoonful will and had their horses seized by the bits. arrest bleeding even from these. He advi-Some of the fugitives were armed and meshould be provided with a small flat tin bot. ful man, supposed to be a teamster, shot tle of this, containing say a couple of Mr. Eaton through the wrist, as he held his ounces which he can wear in his breast horse by the bridle rein. None, however, were permitted to pass, except an army courier who exhibited his dispatches. Mr. Wade and his party held the crowd until the arrival of the 2d New Jersey regiment, then on its way to the battle ground, the colonel of which turned back the flying soldiers and teamsters. Two or three officers were stopped and turned back. This check, though finally overcome, was creditable to our senators and associates.

WERE IN THE BATTLE.-It may be invidions to distinguish between the merits of the several bodies engaged in the battle of July 21; but it is also due to the regiments of foreign origin to remark the eminent courage and efficiency of their service. To the 69th regiment too much praise for unflinching and persistent gallantry can hardly be awarded. It is with sincere sorrow we have to record the loss of their brave commander, who, in a military career so brief, had extended to the whole country the sentiments of respect for his patriotism, energy and self-devotion, which he had long since secured government stocks decline "to the extent of four per cent!" a matter of sincere congratulation among his legion of friends. The 79th (Highland landers) seem to have emulated the Irish regiment in its sturdy and manly fighting qualities. And when the retreat had been ordered, it was the masterly skill of the German brigade under Col. Blenker, which covered the movement, and prevented accumulated disasters. This tribute, so well earned, cannot detract from the credit of the native troops. The immense sacrifice of life sustained by the Fire Zonaves and

> Celt, the Gael, and the Teuton .- New York THREE MONTHS' MEN. There was at | SALT FISH, Washington, on the 24th of July, some 17, 000 three months' men, awaiting their dis-charge to return home. They would not be discharged, however, it was said, until ample reinforcements had arrived. Such is said to be the dislike of the officers on the part of the men, that it would be difficult to procure the re-enlistment of the men. The reater part of them, we apprehend, will enist after a short idleness at home, in new companies, and under new commanders.

COMMERCIAL. Janesville Wholesale Market.

Reported for the Janesville Gazette, BUMP & GRAY. GRAIN AND PRODUCE DEALERS JANESVILLE, JULY 31, 1861.

To-day has been the dullest one for a long time in the grain market, which is owing to the fact that most of the farmers are busily engaged harvesting their grain. Receipts were only about 200 bushels, which sold at a range of 55(6)65 for fair shipping to good milling samples. Receipts of cate and corn were extremely light we note sale of one load of oats at loc, and a few bags of corn at 16c per 60 lbs. No other transactions.

We have of late heard considerable complaint of the ew wheat crop from different sections of the country; farmers representing that the chintz bug and army worm are making great havor in many fields. We have examined several fields of wheat within the past three days and find that the chintz bug are fast destroying the late sown, while the early looks well though as a general thing the grain stands thin on the ground. The quality of the wheat will probably be good, but the yield light, not to exceed an average of 14 bushels per sere through Rock county. We continue yesterday's quotations:

WHEAT-good to choice milling spring 65a68, cur rency; fair to good dry shipping 50a60; rejected 30s 45. The above figures are for currency, a deduction of 5 and Sc per bushel is made payable in gold. CORN-16a16 per 60 lbs. shelled, and 14a16c per 72 real merits. In point of solvency and reliability and honorable dealing, they have but few equals, and no reperiers. They are founded upon the very best securities in the world—first class bonds and mortgages upon property in New York and Brooklyn—securities that have not, for the past ten years, depreciated below par, and are every way more reliable and permanent than rallroad, bank, and other stocks, which are subject to the fluctuations of the market, and liable, in times of

Companies entering the field of competition, well calculated to mislead by publishing partial and one-sided

SUBJECTS OF PATENTS.

Pumps, Without Engine,

In a half hour at ordinary pumping speed, I supply my stock of from forty to fifty head of cattle and horses with one of May's Patent Pumps. Well 70 feet deep, last 30 feet drilled. I can find no fault with this pump and use it in place of another kind that was very often out of repair. Being composed of few and strong pieces, and built on scientific principles, I think they must be very durable.

Bradford, Rock county, Wis., January 29th, 1861. I supply with water 690 sheep, some 60 head of catile and 10 head of horses, with May's Patent Pump. Its great strength, apparent durability and above all the great amount of water it raises in a short time, and its easy working, gives it with me a decided preference keep well pump of another kind, that was often out of order and worked hard. Well 122 feet deep, 72 feet drilled in solid rock, and pump placed 101 feet from urface. Its great strength and simplicity pleases me and am surprised and gratified with the large amount of water raised with little labor, 6 to 8 full strokes of the lever filling a bucket. I deem it one of the most aluable improvements of the age for raising water. JOHN TRACY. Center, Rock county, Wis., Feb. 27th, 1861.

Pumps, With Engines.

I am using one of May's Patent Pumps and Self-Regulating Wind Engine (or Mill) on one of my farms near Janesville. Well 83 feet deep. Pump and mill used ogether, or may be separated in a moment. One to we hours daily is sufficient to pump water for my stock. Also, the pump works very easy by hand audis the first one, after trying different kinds, that gives me entire satisfaction. Having no bolts, packing, raction pipe, or numping rods, and being made heavy and strong, think hey must be very durable. A. HOSKINS. hey must be very durable.

Janesville, Jan. 11th, 1861.

I am using a wind engine, and pump of May's pat nt in a well 65 feet deep. I deem them very valuable improvements, and agree with Mr. Heakins in the above expressed opinion. I had been using a Seneca Fall pump that did not answer my purpose, WM. SCHENCK, Bradford, Rock Co., Wis., Jan. 24th, 1861.

Engines.

Rock Terrace, Wis., Feb. 6th, 1851. Since November 1858, I have been using one of May's Patent Wind Engines, pumping water from a well 186 est deep. The Engine is a powerful one, often pumping fifty barrels of water per day. It stands 110 feet rom the well and the power is communicated from the Engine to the well, underground.

I deem these Engines of great value, saving a vast amount of hard manual labor, and as their merits are inderstood, think they must come into general use. J. V. ROBBINS. These pumps and engines have taken first premium when exhibited in competition at state and county fairs
